Was the Response to the Call to Form a Catholic Federation.

Leading Societies Represented at Meeting at the Louisville Hotel.

Addresses by Edward Neubaus, Dr. J. W. Fowler and E. J. McDermott.

WORK OF TWO YEARS REWARDED

The long-talked of Federation of Catholic Societies of Louisville seems about to be realized and the labors of a number of prominent Catholic laymen crowned with success. Thursday evening there assembled at the Louisville Hotel the Presidents and representatives of a large number of Catholic societies, including the Catholic Club, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Knights of Columbus, Holy Name Society, Young Men's Institute, Catholic Knights of America, Catholic Knights and Ladies of America and others, in response to the call issued by Dr. J. W. Fowler, the State Executive Committeeman for Kentucky.

Editor Kentucky Irish American:

As Trinity Council, Y. M. I., will celebrate its fourth anniversary with a banquet at the Willard Hotel on Friday evening April 4, a few words regarding the history of this progressive and successful organization may interest your Catholic readers, many of whom are members of sister councils here and elsewhere. The hotel has arranged an elaborate menu for the occasion, and the other arrangements are in the hands of the following gentlemen, who have entire charge of the banquet: Messrs. John J. Sullivan, Ben F. Hund, James B. Kelly, Joseph S. Piazza, Price Archer, Henry B. Strube and Thomas J. Garvey. There will be present as guests many prominent members from out of town. Trinity Council, No. 230, was founded April 4, 1898, and comprises Columbus Council organized May 23, 1894; St. Louis Council, organized November 5, Pennington and Rose McGee, trio by oldest landmark in Louisville. His ruary 18, 1896. Early in the year 1898 three councils to make necessary arrangements for their consolidation into one body. Columbus named as its representatives Ben Hund, James Kelly and David O'Connell; St. Louis Council was represented by Frank Lenz, Robert Strube and John Hennessy, and Leo Council by Henry Thierman, J. B. Olligschlager and A. B. Wiedekamp. These gentlemen held meetings at the club house of Columbus Council, 524 East Madison

Japan, instead of allowing England to dictate her course, has attended to her own business without even letting England know of it. Hence the surprise and disappointment in London over the Russia-Japan treaty. That treaty precludes war between Russia and Japan, unless one or the other violates it, and neither is likely to do so to gratify England.

A London dispatch says the wearing of the green on St. Patrick's day was not as popular as usual in that city because of the pro-Boer utterances of Irishmen on receipt of the news of Methuen's defeat. ### THE NEW WOMAN.

We occasionally come across, amid articles on the much-discussed "new reliance, her added strength of character, her lack of timidity. We are told there are no Dora Copperfields any more. We read all this and rejoice inwardly, congratulating ourselves on our superiority to women of other days. Then we go out on the street and a ruffian comes along who makes at our favorite dog mile long—because, forsooth, he barked a little—and we emit a screech which would cause a Comanche Indian to turn green with envy, and the like of which ven Dora in her most childish moments would not have been guilty of. Afterwards when we think it over we decide that as far as her emotions are concerned woman has not changed very much since mother Eve conversed with the active shape. Meetings are being held, committees have been appointed and the details will be arranged for a united effort of old and young to make it an enjoyable success. The various societies will have booths, and other entertainments will be provided. A leading feature is a combination ticket by which a chance on a number of articles is given for one price. The bazar will be held in

This firm is composed of energetic and public spirited young men whose generous gifts to all Waesland for Philadelphia, on the charge David Moore, leather merchant, atlarge patronage from the general public.

Branch 24 held an interesting meeting Tuesday night at Aquinas Hall, Sixth street. One new member was elected and two more applications received, President McGinn and his co-workers were greatly encouraged by the timely and eloquent remarks of James Rogers and Frank Brownfield, and from present indications Branch 24 stands an excellent chance of capturing one of the prizes offered by the Central Committee.
